Announcements

Funds Available

The National Science Foundation (NSF) is currently accepting applications for the following programs:

- NSF Graduate Research Fellowship Program (GRFP): This program provides support to high-quality graduate students in all fields of science and engineering, as well as in select social sciences.
- NSF ADVANCE Program: This program supports institutional initiatives to advance gender equity in the sciences, mathematics, and engineering.

Pre-proposals Due

- National Science Foundation (NSF): Pre-proposals for the NSF’s Research Grants Program are due on April 15, 2023.

Internal Funding Opportunities

- Deans’ Mini-grants: Provided by the University of Oregon’s Provost Office, these grants support innovative teaching and learning initiatives. Applications are due on May 30, 2023.

Limited/Internally Coordinated Submissions

- Book Publication Fund: Applications are due on May 30, 2023.

Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Opportunities

- NSF’s Community Innovation Challenge Grant Program (CIC): This program supports community-based projects that address local needs and have the potential for innovation and broad impact. Applications are due on May 15, 2023.

Featured External Opportunities

- University of California, Davis: Graduate Fellowship Program: This program provides opportunities for graduate students to conduct research in a variety of fields. Applications are due on May 30, 2023.

Honors and Awards

- University of Oregon’s Provost’s Awards for Undergraduate Research Excellence (PAURE): These awards recognize undergraduate students for their research achievements. Applications are due on June 10, 2023.

Curated Pivot Searches

- NSF’s Pivot Search: This tool allows researchers to search for potential funding opportunities based on their research interests. For more information, visit the NSF’s website.

Contact Information

For more information or to apply for any of these opportunities, please visit the respective websites or contact the specified offices. Email: rds@uoregon.edu