Announcements

National Institutes of Health Webinar: A number of 150 initiatives are now available through the American Recovery Plan for R&D that are designed to support fundamental research in the United States. The initiative aims to establish a national funding program to support new, high-risk academic, cross-disciplinary, and/or targeted areas during the summer semester. The webinar will be on June 22, 2021 and prior registration is required.

National Science Foundation Webinar: The NSF’s Physics Division is interested in identifying proposals related to a novel challenge termed “multidisciplinary team formation.” This challenge is a grand research challenge that requires the articulation of a grand challenge centered around a critical and shared question and the development of ideas that address the problem. Proposals are due by July 22, 2021.
