Announcements

The staff of Research Development Services wishes you happy holidays as we wind down the past year and start afresh in the new year. Please note that our weekly funding opportunities newsletter will resume on January 11, 2022.

Lightning Talk on Fire Science

As part of a new initiative to advance research across Oregon, research development teams across higher education in this state are piloting a new series of virtual Lightning Talks, which will allow faculty from different institutions to provide short, compelling elevator pitches on projects they are leading. Each event will focus on a specific theme. The overall goal of these sessions is to introduce faculty from different institutions and seed potential collaborations. The first talk will focus on fire science - understanding wildfire from social, ecological, or modeling perspectives, creative work or engagement involving fire, public health and wildfire, decision-making around wildfire risk, and more. This event will feature 5-6 presentations (5 minutes per faculty presentation and 5 minutes for Q&A) for a one-hour session. To submit your interest, and indicate a preference for scheduling, please complete this brief form: Lightning Talks abstract submission form by Friday, December 31, 2021. Contact Susan Emerson at OSU with questions.
