Global Young Scientists Summit 2023

The Global Young Scientists Summit \(GYSS\) is an annual multidisciplinary summit in Singapore, which gathers some of the world's foremost scientists and technologists who will engage and inspire aspiring young researchers. Eminent speakers include recipients of the Nobel Prize, Fields Medal, Millennium Technology Prize, and Turing Award, among other luminaries. The next event will take place from December 17-20, 2023. UO is invited to nominate one person for onsite participation and up to five people for online viewership. Faculty interested in participating should contact RDS.

Resources for State-Level Science and Engineering Decision Making Webinar

The National Science Board and the National Center for Science and Engineering Statistics, located within the National Science Foundation, present the interactive webinar "Resources for State-Level Science and Engineering Decision-Making." Panelists will discuss the importance of US state trends in science and engineering, as well as the powerful tools available for discovering indicators in education, workforce, research and development, patents and publications and knowledge-intensive industries. Registration is required for this webinar, which will take place on April 21, 2022, from 11:00 a.m. to noon.

Government-University-Industry Research Roundtable: Science and Engineering Indicators

The Government-University-Industry Research Roundtable will convene a webinar on April 20, 2022, at 7:00 a.m. to discuss the National Science Board's 2022 US Science and Engineering Indicators report, which was released in January of this year. The report, prepared every two years by the National Science Foundation's National Center for Science and Engineering Statistics, provides information on the state of the US science and engineering enterprise over time and within a global context. Registration is required.
